

PORTO Swiss speakers should not be restricted to the house. Whereas the sound quality on most portable speakers tend to be minimal, the "lively" AudioPro's Porto music speaker specifications, comparable with most small home hi-fi systems. It features an iPod dock and rechargeable battery, as well as a detachable cabinet and convenient carrying handle that means you can take your music wherever you want.

www.audiopro.com

SONIC CHAIR W In a minimalist design and a cozy décor, the Sonic Chair has a semi-circular back panel. It is comfortable, off the seat and a USB powered in 50 different colours, and the speakers and special sound membrane that fit into the backrest, because give a new face on the room surround sound. The seat comes in a range of over 50 different colours, from bright neons to subtle, elegant shades and you also get a small wall-mounted music sources, from CD players to portable laptops. The included headphones are designed to keep external noises out, but also to keep the music in, so there's no need to worry the neighbours in the night time.

www.sonicchair.de

PHONOPHONE II

No matter how much high technology and digital trends change, it seems the iconic form of the gramophone refuses to be forgotten. This elegant, hand-crafted table version of the Phonophone II series on from Shimmer+Sound is almost a design object in itself, but attach the cabinets of an iPod and it will project the sound coming through the headphones into the room. 50 decibels of passive amplification, without the use of any extra power or batteries.

www.shimmerandsound.com

FHD07 British company Ferguson Hill offers a minimalist outdoor table or speaker design with the use of FHD07 - a smaller desktop version of the "stunning" FHD01. The size of the transparent cast acrylic materials to blend in with its surroundings and create the illusion of space. The post-cast resin is chosen to be excessive in brittleness that may raise small-scale issues.

www.fergusonhill.co.uk